

BRIAN ALLBRITTON

Executive Director

Powered by: The great outdoors and his kids

After spending nearly two decades in the world of corporate tech, Brian embraced the opportunity to change courses and shift to the non-profit sector. In 2014, he joined Trillium Family Services as CFO, where he led IT, New Business Innovation, and Finance in support of an organization that provides mental health treatment to Oregon's most vulnerable children. He found a high level of personal satisfaction in this new professional path and is excited to extend that with Oregon Energy Fund.

At Trillium, Brian worked collaboratively to establish an operational and financial strategy that delivered the organization's best results in its nearly 150 year history. During this time, he was responsible for planning, directing, and managing all financial aspects of the organization. In addition, he worked closely and transparently with board members, local businesses, hospitals, and other stakeholders to accelerate the organizational mission.

Brian received a Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering from the United States Coast Guard Academy, an MBA from London Business School, and is a Fellow of the American Leadership Forum. Remaining consistent throughout his education and career is his love of building and growing organizations. He has managed teams in Engineering, Market Research, Retail, Operations, and Project Management - both across the country and around the world. Brian is excited about the growth and opportunity that lie ahead for Oregon Energy Fund.

JESSICA ALEKSY

Development Director

Jessica holds a B.A. in Political Science from Providence College, a certificate in Political Science from the Sorbonne University of Paris, and an M.S. in Sustainable Community & Economic Development from the Stevenson Center at Illinois State University. Prior to Oregon Energy Fund, Jess has held capacity building positions with the Boys & Girls Club, the Alliance to End Homelessness, and most recently in Director-level Marketing & Development positions at Saint Andre Bessette and Girls Inc. of the Pacific Northwest. In her professional positions, Jess has welcomed the challenge of starting a development office from the ground up, completing a $2.1 million campaign, developing systems for ambitious expansion efforts, coordinating region-wide brand awareness campaigns, and initiating critical development programs aimed at the long term sustainability of her organizations.

In addition, Jess finds time to serve as Board Member & VP of Marketing for AFP Oregon & SW Washington, Marketing Committee and National Conference Steering Committee Member for the Young Nonprofit Professionals Network of Portland, and Professional Presenter on topics of generational marketing & philanthropy throughout the region. Jess has also been honored as a past recipient of Portland's Starbright Crystal Award for rising star in the nonprofit sector and passed the rigorous examination process to achieve her Certified Fund Raising Executive accreditation in 2014.

As the newest director to the Oregon Energy Fund leadership team, Jess is thrilled to be joining such an incredibly hard-working, visionary, and enthusiastic organization. With the recent move to the downtown office, Jess is also looking forward to the virtually limitless potential for increased awareness, partnership opportunities, and centralized support to drive state-wide efforts.

MARIETTA DONEY

Deputy Director

Marietta started at Oregon Energy Fund in 2004, overseeing Finance, Programs and Operations. Prior to this she worked in various financial positions, including seven years as the Chief Fiscal Officer at the Columbia River Maritime Museum in Astoria, Oregon. She has a passion for non-profit organization management and loves the day to day details and working with our agency partners.

A native Oregonian Marietta raised her family on the Oregon Coast and now lives in Portland with two of her grandchildren. In her spare time she volunteers with local schools and enjoys spending time with her children and grandchildren as well as gardening and quilting.

ANN ROGERS-WILLIAMS

Events & Development Coordinator

Powered by: Libby (her highly energetic, 5:30am wake-up dog), volunteer work, and her support of the arts

As a nonprofit professional, Ann brings more than 4 years of Development and Event Planning experience, plus more than 5 years of program experience working directly with low- and moderate-income clients of all ages and backgrounds. Her diverse experience includes substantial writing for nonprofit agency communications, community outreach and adult education programming, as well as technical writing experience. Ann holds a B.A. in English from the California State University at Los Angeles, training in nonprofit management, and a gerontology certificate.

CHRISTIANE FITZGERALD

Marketing & Development Coordinator

Powered by: Cheese, Nutella, and long meandering road trips

Christiane holds a B.A. in Economics from the University of Hawaii at Manoa and a Master's in International Business from Grenoble Ecole de Management in Grenoble, France. After working for several years in Marketing and Communications for a real estate conglomerate, Christiane decided she wanted to exercise her skills for social good and transitioned to work in the nonprofit field. She is incredibly excited to be working with Oregon Energy Fund to provide energy assistance—a cause she is particularly passionate about, having experienced energy vulnerability as a child.

In her spare time, Christiane volunteers for numerous causes including serving as a Board Member for the Young Nonprofit Professionals Network of Portland. She enjoys cooking, judo, and trying out new adventures—from whitewater rafting on Mt. Hood to going on long-distance roadtrips to Mexico and Canada.
